

GROUP FACILITATION TRAINING

INTERMEDIATE

with Fay Lilian

9am - 5pm: Sunday 15 March 2020

Central Auckland

This seven-hour experiential training is highly suitable for people who have already gained basic facilitation skills through other training or group experience.

It is for facilitators of therapeutic or psycho-educational groups, for tutors of adult education programmes or for any person interested in becoming an active leaderful participant of groups, who would like to extend their understanding of group life through knowledge of some key concepts and theory. When we view any group as a whole entity with predictable impulses, when we see the group as a major resource to us, the way we work as facilitators is enhanced.

Participants can expect to draw upon their own interests, concerns and experiences as group members or facilitators to strengthen their ability to recognise group life phases, learning styles, group themes, common challenges and possible interventions that might be made.

We will consider conscious and unconscious dynamics and the possible effects on group-life. We will practise processes that might be used to develop an equal partnership in co-facilitation.

Action methods will be used to enhance theoretical and experiential learning, and Fay will facilitate the sharing of our collective wisdom, skills, experience and ideas through playful practise and experimentation together.

When: 9.00am – 5.00pm, Sunday 15 March 2020 (please ensure you can attend the full day)

Lunch: As breaks will be brief, consider bringing your own kai, or picking something up. There is a microwave, also a bakery and cafes nearby. Coffee, tea and biscuits will be provided.
