Ruth Beaglehole is a New Zealander with tertiary qualifications in Early Childhood and Counselling. Her achievements in L.A. include establishing a tri-lingual childcare centre and later a childcare and education programme for teen mothers. Her passion and knowledge culminated in founding the Echo Parenting and Education Centre, where many graduates of her teen mother programme are now involved as staff, assisting and empowering the next generation of parents.

A huge amount of development happens within the first years of life, and how we relate to young children is so important to the years that follow. Early Childhood Educators are in the business of “people-making” and they need the best possible tools and support.

Come and hear Ruth speak from her extensive experience about her empathy-led practice, based on the latest research about brain and child development, that promotes life-long connections and learning.
